

This map shows the extent of deforestation in Rondonia, Brazil, and the area that would be at risk of deforestation if a proposed road were built. About 46 percent of the area within 5.5 km of existing roads is deforested. Assuming a similar rate of deforestation, the proposed road would lead to about 623 sq. km of new deforestation.

Data sources: Brazilian Institute of Geography and Statistics, Brazilian National Institute for Space Research, World Wildlife Fund, Imazon, HERE.

Source: US National Park Service

0 1,650 3,300 6,600 9,900 13,200 Kilometers

Source: Esri, DigitalGlobe, GeoEye, Earthstar Geographics, CNES/Airbus DS, USDA, USGS, AeroGRID, IGN, and the GIS User Community